2. On 16 August, [REDACTED] briefed Senator Alan Cranston (D., CA) and his foreign policy adviser, Jerry Warburg, on the history of the Contadora peace initiatives and their prospects for success. Mr. Warburg did most of the questioning, much of which focused on Washington's role--if any--in the initiatives. We referred him to State Department on the policy matters, and concentrated instead on substantive issues. [REDACTED] also provided a brief fill-in on the current political scene in Venezuela, the first stop on the Senator's trip which begins on 17 August and continues for six days with stops in Colombia, Panama and Mexico.
